THATCHER'S I.R.A. HOLIDAY CAMP

FOCUS ON
'THE MAZE'

WE PRINT ON THIS PAGE a picture of Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher visiting an IRA bomb victim in hospital. Her face, appropriately angled for the benefit of the press photographers, has an expression of concern and compassion. "Oh, my poor young man," she seems to be saying, "isn't it terrible what those beastly IRA gangsters have done to you!"

And of course Mrs. Thatcher and her ministers are regularly making speeches expressing their outrage at IRA brutality and their sympathy for its victims.

But when we look behind the public posturing and speechifying of the members of the Government, what do we find? What is the Government actually doing to prevent IRA terror? The answer is: very little.

NO PUNISHMENT

One of the most important steps to stop the terrorists is to drive it home to them that if they are caught they can expect a terrible punishment. As it is, the 'punishment' meted out to the IRA thugs is scarcely a punishment at all. Let us look at what actually happens to them.

Most of them, when arrested, are sent to The Maze Prison near Belfast. Conditions in the prison are generally acknowledged to be among the pleasantest and most comfortable to be found in prisons anywhere in the British Isles.

All the cells in The Maze are fitted with modern furniture and all the eight blocks are centrally heated. There are never more than two prisoners to a cell.

Apart from each block having its own leisure room, complete with television and indoor games, there are also two full-sized sports pitches and a fully equipped gymnasium.

The Maze offers a magnificent selection of educational and vocational facilities. Last year prisoners sat A levels in 31 subjects and O levels in 160 subjects. There are also 21 prisoners studying for an Open University degree.

The subjects covered include

English, mathematics, geography, history, sociology, Irish language, art, music, technical drawing, typing, handicrafts, braille translation, foreign languages, current affairs, physical education theory and car maintenance.

These are the officially acknowledged courses. Also included, although not officially acknowledged, are courses on terrorism — yes, the IRA prisoners are allowed to organise these themselves, with the prison staff instructed to make no attempt to stop them!

CROCODILE TEARS?

Mrs. Thatcher's public expression of concern for this IRA victim would be more convincing if she was doing something serious to deter the terrorists.

an average of £1.45 a week for working. Maze prisoners earn an average of £2.50 a week.

REMISSION

Another concession to which the Government has agreed is the

We believe that there is only one way to stop the IRA now, and that is the institution of the ultimate deterrent: the death penalty. This should be administered to all those found guilty of acts of terrorism. And any others found to have been members of the IRA or to have assisted it in any way should be sent to jail for a long time and under conditions so severe that they will never want to return there again.

When, and only when, the Government adopts these measures will we believe that Mrs. Thatcher is really serious about protecting the British people from the bombers and the gunmen.

While thugs on the loose maim and kill, those in custody enjoy the home comforts

Said a Northern Ireland Office spokesman, "Even though a prisoner has a long sentence, we want them to serve a useful life when they come out, and so a wide programme of vocational training has been developed."

How touching!

FURTHER CONCESSIONS

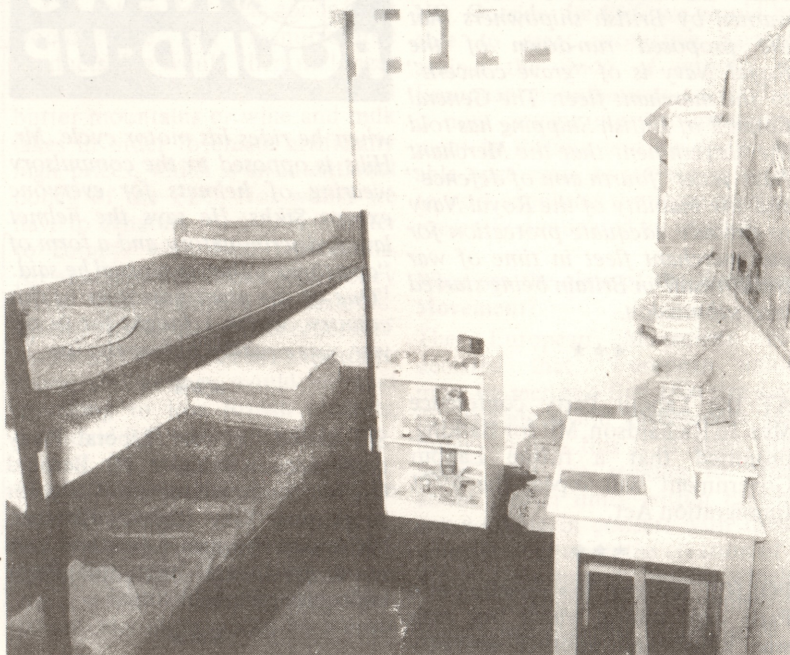

Prisoners in The Maze are now to get further concessions, following the hunger strikes. After the Government trumpeting to the nation that it would not give in to the strikers, it is now doing just that. One concession is that the prisoners will be allowed to wear their own clothes at all times — something that is not allowed in any prisons on the British mainland.

In the latter prisons inmates earn restoration of lost remission for prisoners in The Maze. Up to 50 per-cent of remission lost for certain types of offences in the prison will be restored. Prison inmates elsewhere in the UK never get such concessions.

Altogether then, IRA men when they are caught have by no means a bad time. They enjoy comforts, facilities and rights not enjoyed by prisoners anywhere else in the country. Although among them are some of the most vicious murderers, they are much better off than thousands of petty offenders who inhabit other places of detention. In fact there is hardly any deterrent at all to discourage the IRA from continuing in its acts of terror.

Conditions are the most comfortable in the UK.

'DEMOCRACY'

TO MOST British politicians the survival of 'Democracy' is more important than the survival of Britain or the British Race. They speak about it in hushed tones, as if it were sacrosanct. This is not surprising because the continuance of 'Democracy' is essential if they are to maintain their positions of power and influence.

But any intelligent person interested in the governance of our country knows that 'Democracy' is a fraud because, whoever is in power, the voter has no real influence. Opinion polls show that on matters like the Common Market, Immigration and Capital Punishment the wishes of the majority are consistently ignored.

'Democracy' is inherently divisive. It divides the populace into contending factions, thus providing the disciples of class warfare with a fertile breeding ground in which to operate. It is also responsible for the relatively frequent change of governments, and hence policies, which is a sure recipe for disaster!

'Democracy', then, is incompatible with National Unity; it is also inimical to Patriotism, Authority and Leadership. And it is precisely because these four attributes are so conspicuously lacking in Britain today that we are in a state of national chaos and decline.

We Nationalists are probably better aware than anyone of the fraudulence of 'Democracy', for we are its chief victims. The broadcasting media are never put at our disposal; we can only hold meetings in publicly-owned premises by resorting to subterfuge; few newsagents will sell our publications; and we alone are denied many of the facilities granted to the other parties as of right, including the right of assembly and free speech.

Complaint is useless. We accept that for the moment we are political pariahs; but our resolve is fortified by the knowledge that our time will come, maybe sooner than we think. However, our present predicament prompts us to suggest that perhaps the time has come for us to cease paying lip service to 'Democracy' and advocate instead a more efficient and more equitable system of government that places greater importance on the good of the country and wishes of the people.

We shall, of course, be accused of favouring dictatorship; but is an enlightened dictatorship necessarily a bad thing? In any case, whatever system we prefer, we can hardly be blamed for opposing a system that has demonstrably failed, is manifestly unfair, and has had catastrophic consequences for our people and country.

What Britain needs now is Leadership. Without a Leadership that is keenly attuned and responsive to the aspirations of a people imbued with the ideals of Patriotism, Race and Nation no country can survive for long. The New National Front provides such Leadership and has in its ranks patriots of the very highest calibre. We believe that our party is a microcosm of what our country should be, and one day will be. Therefore we must give it all the support we can.

MEMBERS of a gang of coloured youths have been charged with tricking a 14-year-old white schoolgirl into visiting a Brixton flat where it is alleged she was repeatedly raped. Before the court were four coloured youths and two schoolgirl accomplices who have been charged with rape, indecent assault, robbery and abduction.

THE GOVERNMENT has been warned by British shipowners that the proposed run-down of the Royal Navy is of "grave concern" to the merchant fleet. The General Council of British Shipping has told the Government that the Merchant Navy is the "fourth arm of defence" and the inability of the Royal Navy to provide adequate protection for our merchant fleet in time of war could result in Britain being starved into submission.

AT the Labour Party conference Miss Jo Richardson, MP for Barking, promised that a future Labour Government will repeal the 1971 Immigration Act.

POLICE say that the shooting in a Paris cafe during which one man was killed and another seriously wounded was caused by a dispute between gangs of the Jewish underworld operating in the city.

A RETIRED mathematics teacher aged 72, Mr. Fred Hills, has been jailed for the twenty-first time for refusing to wear a crash helmet when he rides his motor cycle. Mr. Hills is opposed to the compulsory wearing of helmets for everyone except Sikhs. He says the helmet law is discriminatory and a form of "apartheid". During his trial he said: "One of the great principles of this country, which I fought for in the war, was equality before the law."

SPEAKING at the Liberal Party conference, a delegate, Mr. Bernard Greaves, commended the Party for supporting 'Gay Rights'. He said: "It makes me proud to stand here as a gay-Liberal that this Party welcomes people like me."

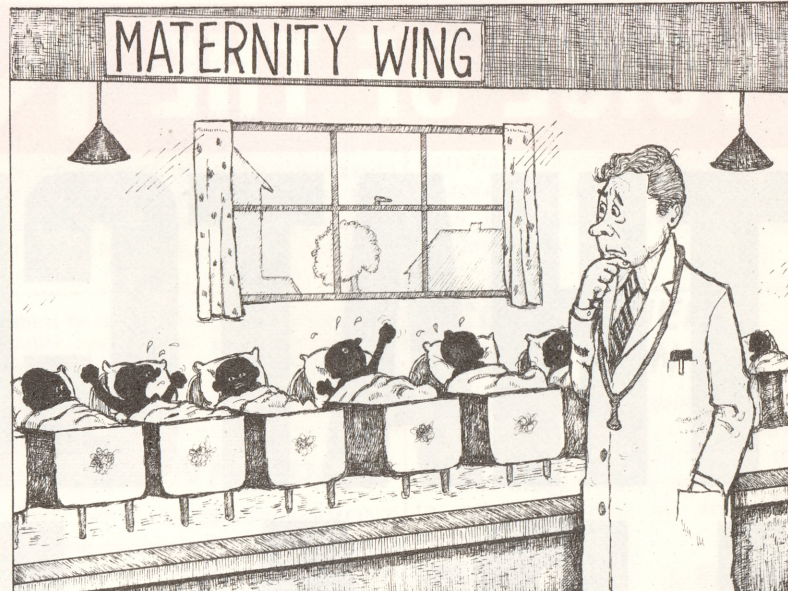

Four reasons why we should NOT help the 'Third World'

ON OCTOBER 22nd there opened, with great press publicity, a conference of world leaders at Cancun in Mexico. Its purpose was to determine how the developed nations, such as, Britain and the United States, might do more in the way of economic aid to the under-developed nations, known as the 'Third World'.

This paper believes that from Britain's point of view that conference was a waste of time and should have been boycotted. We do not believe that Britain should do any more to help the 'Third World'—in fact we believe that we have no obligation to help the 'Third World' at all. Why should we not do so? Here are four good reasons:—

• People are in need here at home. There are large numbers of needy people here in our own country—old folk, the disabled and some of the very young who lack nourishment. Services to the needy in Britain are totally inadequate. Every penny that we have available for charity should go to them.

• They are outbreeding us. The population of the 'Third World' is increasing much faster than that of the developed nations. By the end of the century, if present rates continue, there will be 6 billion people in the world and only one tenth of them will be White. The more aid we give the 'Third World' the more it wants. A decreasing portion of producers and wealth-creators is supporting an ever increasing proportion of people who have to be subsidised. We should be discouraging the 'Third World' from breeding, and the only effective way to do that is not to give it aid.

BREEDING US OUT

The population explosion of the 'Third World' is swamping the White peoples—both overseas and in Britain.

• Aiding them doesn't help us. Contrary to popular myth, by giving aid to the 'Third World' we do not help the British economy. Even if the aid is used to buy British exports, we would be better off just paying the money to the industries producing the exports, so that they could then divert their production to making goods for export for which the buyers can pay. In some cases the aid positively harms British industry by equipping our competitors.

• Often the aid helps terrorism. Many of the countries to which we are giving aid are participating in or financing acts of terrorism, against Britain or Britain's friends, such as South Africa. Aid given to these countries releases other money that can be used to buy weapons for use against ourselves or our friends.

For all these reasons—and there are more besides—we believe that Lord Carrington should not have represented Britain at the conference at Cancun. He should have stayed at home.

ASIAN TRADERS MAKE PROFITS FROM MISERY

ONE of the most disquieting signs of the times is the growing addiction of young people to the revolting and dangerous practice of 'glue sniffing'. What is equally obnoxious about the practice is that many of those who peddle addictive solvents are immigrants who admit that they make a good living out of their sordid trade. These men are evil.

Recently, a Scottish newspaper, the Evening Times, published an article featuring the nefarious activities of Asian shopkeepers in Glasgow who thrive on the misery they bring to youngsters.

Some of the people involved in this apparently lucrative trade seem to be callously unconcerned about the distress they are creating for many youngsters and their parents who live in Glasgow. One Asian shopkeeper, Mr. Mushtaq Sheikh, defiantly says: "I will not stop selling glue. There is no law against it." He continued quite unconcernedly, "I sell to children or adults whenever they come in. Why should I refuse if they come in asking for glue? I sell to get money."

Another shopkeeper, John Hassan, at first denied selling glue to children when confronted by an Evening Times reporter. Later, however, he admitted: "I know children die from sniffing. I'm sorry about that. Maybe I make a mistake now and then and sell glue to younger children. All right, I do sell glue, but it's nobody's business but mine."

glue sniffers.

Police in Glasgow have expressed concern about glue sniffing in the city, and have now issued an appeal urging shopkeepers not to sell glue to children. The appeal has been translated into Urdu, Hindustani and Punjabi.

YOUR LETTERS

Sir,—I was sickened by the recent publicity given to the funeral of a Sikh soldier killed in Northern Ireland. The amount of time devoted in the media to this funeral was far greater than that given to white soldiers, and much publicity was given to the turbans worn by white soldiers in the Sikh temple. The proponents of multiracialism have reached an all-time low by using our television screens for this sort of propaganda. Do the souls of hundreds of white soldiers who have died in Northern Ireland no longer count for anything?

David Ball,
Hull, Yorkshire.

Sir,—I entirely agreed with your August leader in which you took the Home Secretary to task for suggesting that the way to reduce the prison population was to reduce prison sentences.

As an old age pensioner who has been 'mugged' twice during the past six months, I am alarmed to learn that Mr. Whitelaw is still suggesting the same 'solution' to the problem of prison overcrowding. Only today I read a speech given by Mr. Whitelaw in which he said that sentences must be reduced "so that decent standards of custodial treatment can be maintained..."

'Custodial treatment'! What does Mr. Whitelaw think these people are? Unfortunates who have through no fault of their own caught an infectious disease? Has he no concern for the victims of these animals?

It seems obvious to everyone except the likes of Mr. Whitelaw that capital and corporal punishment must be restored. Crime must be reduced, not sentences! And while we're about it, penal servitude ought to be restored for good measure!

Harry White,
Bristol.

A GRANT of £320,000 has been given by the World Council of Churches to 47 'liberation groups', including £68,000 to SWAPO, the terrorist group that operates in South-West Africa. Meanwhile, the British Council of Churches, which is affiliated to the WCC, has given a £500 grant to the 'Liverpool 8 Defence Committee' and has also given an undisclosed sum to the 342 people arrested in Southall after attacks on the police two years ago.

A 41-year-old woman stopped her car near Tewkesbury and asked two coloured men for directions. The men pulled the woman from her car, hit her over the head and stabbed her twice in the stomach. A police spokesman later said that they were looking for two men aged about 20 of "Jamaican appearance."

SO MANY murders have been committed in Miami during recent weeks that the city's morgue is unable to cope with the number of corpses awaiting burial, and they are having to store them in refrigerated lorries. Miami's medical officer blames the large influx of Colombians, Cubans and Haitians for the high murder rate.

SOLD TO 14-YEAR-OLDS

Yet another Asian shopkeeper, Mr. Nirbal Singh, claimed that he only sold glue to adults. When it was pointed out to him that a 14-year-old boy had been observed buying glue from him only a few minutes before, Mr. Singh said: "Okay, I've sold glue to boys, but only ones about 14."

One shopkeeper, Mr. Raja Taufiq, denied selling glue to children, but he admitted that he sold the plastic bags that are used by

'LET'S USE YOUTH CLUBS FOR REVOLUTION'

West Indian youth leader spells it out

AYLESBURY COUNCIL recently caused a storm by allocating a large sum of the ratepayers' money to a special club room for Rastafarians at a newly-built civic amenity centre. The club room had originally been intended for use by all young people in the area but the Black Rastafarians objected to this, saying that they did not wish to mix with Whites. Thereupon the Council meekly agreed to let them have EXCLUSIVE use of the club room. The Council, incidentally, is CONSERVATIVE-CONTROLLED.

What is not generally known is that local government bodies all over the country have for some years been making allocations of ratepayers' money for the provision of social and recreational facilities which in fact are being used by extreme left-wing political groups for recruitment, indoctrination and activity. The premises in question are often innocently called 'resource centres', or alternatively just referred to as 'community centres' or simply 'clubs'. In reality they are centres of subversion, unscrupulously used by those whose aim is the destruction of Britain.

Sometimes the subversives who use them are more outspoken than usual about their aims. An example is Mr. Gus John, a West Indian-born 'youth worker' employed by Manchester Council in the capacity of 'area co-ordinator for community education in Moss Side'.

Mr. John was speaking at the Revolutionary agitation: the salutes tell the story launching of his 240-page report 'In the service of Black youth', published by the National Association of Youth Clubs, and said that youth clubs for Black youngsters should abandon their traditional 'football and table tennis' image and accept the "radical and revolutionary potential" of their members. The authorities, he continued, too often favoured a "conformist and conventional" approach to youth work.

Black youth clubs, he said, should become involved in helping to change society in the ways their members and the local Black community wanted. Most youth clubs fail to realise the radical and revolutionary potential of Black youth in particular and the Black working class in this country.

Mr. John gave an interesting insight as to his intentions when he suggested that instead of a club leader simply giving a character reference when one of his club members appeared in court, he should organise a group of fellow members and parents to band together to express community support.

What in fact he was saying was that when Black rioters get arrested for offences against law and order, demonstrations should be organised outside and inside the courts to intimidate the magistrates or juries. This has already been put into practice at a number of courts, as we have seen, and notably at Bristol. What Mr. John clearly wants is that Black youth centres, paid for by the ratepayer, should be used as headquarters for the organisation of these activities!

Among his other proposals is that local authority youth centres should be controlled by a 'radical structure' involving young people, parents and others chosen by the users and local authority representatives. This is an almost certain recipe for such facilities coming under the permanent control of politically motivated Black immigrant groups in league with left-wing councillors, for, although local Whites would theoretically be eligible to use these youth centres and have a say in how they were to be run, in practice they could easily be driven out by violence and intimidation — as New Frontier

WHERE IT ALL LEADS
A city burns during the riots in July knows very well from reports sent by its readers from all over Britain.

There is no doubt that much of what Mr. Gus John has proposed is already happening, and that these ratepayer-financed nests of subversion were used in large part to organise the riots that convulsed many British cities in July of this year.

COMMON MARKET COMMENT

WHAT WOULD BE INVOLVED IN GETTING OUT?

and-for-all payment and would be far less expensive than the levies, taxes and payment for the maintenance of the huge Euro-bureaucracy we will have to pay each year we remain in the EEC.

Would withdrawal from the EEC adversely affect Britain's defence?

NO. We would be perfectly free to make such military alliances as we consider to be necessary for the defence of our country.

Would there be less bureaucracy?

YES. British industry would no longer have to waste time and money studying and complying with innumerable EEC regulations and directives. For the ordinary individual there would be far less unnecessary red tape to contend with.

By leaving the EEC would we be more vulnerable to a communist take over?

NO. On the contrary, our resistance to communism would be strengthened. We would stop subsidizing the Russians and their satellites by selling butter and other goods to them at prices far below production costs.

Would unemployment increase if we left the EEC?

NO. Outside the EEC we would be able to erect protective barriers against the flood of imports of European manufactured goods that is now causing massive unemployment in Britain, and we would be able once again to put our factories to work supplying the home markets presently dominated by imports.

What are the aims of the European Movement?

The European Movement has declared that "European union must be seen as a first effective step to ultimate world government and order." From this it is clear that those who are seeking to bring about greater unity within Europe are working in concert with those who are bent upon the creation of a World Government, besides which, all the dictatorships and tyrannies of history will pale into insignificance.

READERS of New Frontier who are worried by Britain's continued membership of the European Economic Community often ask us whether Britain could withdraw from the EEC and what the likely consequences would be. Below are answers to some of the more frequently asked questions.

Can we get out of the EEC?

YES. The British Government's booklet, Britain's New Deal in Europe, published before the 1975 Referendum, specifically stated: "The British Parliament retains the final right to repeal the Act which took us into the Market on January 1, 1973. Thus our continued membership will depend on the continuing assent of Parliament."

Is there a viable alternative to Britain remaining in the EEC?

YES. Britain's enforced phasing out of favourable long-term agreements with Commonwealth and overseas countries could be reversed, and EEC import taxes abolished. Climatic conditions and other factors enable many of these countries to produce foodstuffs much more cheaply than we can, and in return for such goods they would take our manufactured products. We would then no longer be forced to stockpile beef and butter mountains or wine and milk lakes in order to create artificially high prices, which is an intentional policy of the EEC. Nor would we have to denature foodstuffs in order to comply with EEC regulations. An equitable and cheap food policy could then gradually be restored. Britain's imports from the other EEC countries far exceeds her exports to them, and as they would be most unwilling to lose British markets, we would still trade with them.

Would withdrawal from the EEC be too expensive?

NO. No direct payment is involved. There would be certain expenses, as are common to all winding-up operations; but these would be a once-

Their action certainly put the cat amongst the pigeons! Here, for a change, was an example of a union that really does look after the interests of its members. Predictably, David Lane, the Commissar-in-Chief of the Commission for Racial Equality, created quite a furore over the incident. But he had better look out because we White people object to him and his sort just as much as British Leyland workers object to Black men in their factory!

WISE FOOLS?

No patriotic Briton will criticise the aims and ideals of that well-intentioned, if rather quaintly named, organisation that calls itself The Global Association of Welsh, Irish, Scots and English (better known as WISE). However, I, and I'm sure many other people, do question the Association's foolish and obsessive concern about the need to be regarded as 'respectable'.

A colleague of mine recently attended a meeting held by WISE at which the main speaker was Sir Ronald Bell, QC, MP. The meeting was to have been held at the Royal Commonwealth Society's premises in London, but when the RCS got wind of the fact that WISE was a 'racist' organisation, permission to use the Society's hall was promptly and predictably withdrawn. Members of WISE then had to resort to the subterfuge of masquerading as the London & Counties' Tenants' Association in order to obtain an alternative venue — which turned out to be no less a place than the National Liberal Club!

These events go to prove that no matter how 'respectable' or genteel opponents of multiracialism may be, the enemies of the British people will not allow them to retain an image of respectability. Anyone intrepid enough to oppose multiracialism, however politely, is soon branded as a Fascist thug and bully boy, and is denied the opportunity and facilities to propagate such views — as those of us who have belonged to Nationalist organisations for any length of time are well aware.

Personally, I'm rather pleased that this incident occurred when Sir Ronald Bell happened to be guest speaker. Not long ago he wrote a letter to The Daily Telegraph in which he admitted that on the question of immigration the British people had been duped and hoodwinked by all the major political parties, but he added that those small parties implacably opposed to the multiracial state were never 'respectable'. Perhaps it will now have dawned on Sir Ronald why it is that we don't have an image of respectability.

If the good people who belong to WISE (and they are good people) really intend to do something more than simply talk about the evils of multiracialism, then they will have to be prepared to forget about preserving their respectable image. Actions speak louder than words.

TALKING POINTS by FRONTIERSMAN

NON-EVENT

The non-event of the year must surely have been Mrs. Thatcher's much heralded Cabinet 'reshuffle'. "Cabinet Wets Sacked", screamed the headlines. Were those two living examples of osmosis at work, Whitelaw and Prior, sacked? Not at all. Both remain in the Cabinet, though it is true that Prior was shunted over to Northern Ireland — that is, to the one place where firmness, and not wetness, is the most necessary quality. What was perhaps most noteworthy about Mrs. T's latest game of musical chairs was the demotion of Education Secretary Mark Carlisle, who was one of the least wet members of her team. Carlisle has been an outspoken critic of immigration and has on occasion actually spoken out against the Government's failure to implement its election promise severely to curtail immigration. Most likely that is the reason he has fallen from grace!

PLAUDITS FOR VANESSA

Whenever I hear of the doings of Vanessa (the underdress) Redgrave a shiver of revulsion creeps up my spine. Recently I read an article written by Miss Redgrave in one of the Sunday papers. On this particular occasion she deserved New Frontier's plaudits; for there amidst all the verbiage penned by that left-wing virago appeared the following sentence: "Zionism is racism." We couldn't have put it better! — but we rather suspect that Miss Redgrave will now find it a little more difficult to obtain roles commensurate with her undoubted acting ability.

FREUDIAN SLIP?

I never cease to be amazed at the antics that some of our MPs get up to. Not long ago I took to task in this column a Tory MP who was in the habit of attending 'tea time dances' with his lady friend. Now it emerges from a hearing for the renewal of a gaming licence by the Playboy Club, that Liberal MP Clement Freud is not only a director of the Club, but actually plays the tables! And we are told that MPs are so overworked and underpaid! There certainly seems to be some advantages to be had by our elected (or should I say chosen?) representatives!

CORES FOR COMPLAINT?

I note that a recent NNF Organisers' Bulletin made reference to the "homosexual hard core" when mentioning the composition of the National Front's so-called National Directorate. Is "hard core" the right expression to apply to queers? Wouldn't "soft core" be more accurate? Or better still, "rotten core"?

PLEASANT CHANGE

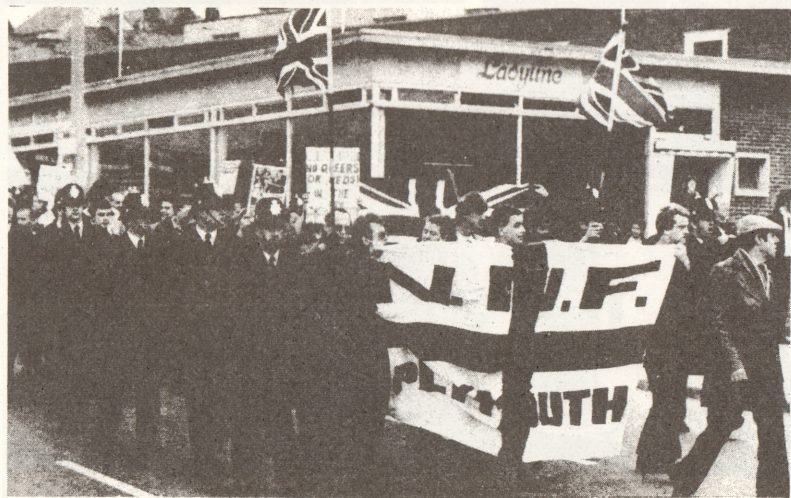

It was indeed a pleasant change to learn that not all trade union shop stewards are afflicted with the more virulent forms of Marxism and multiracialism. The action of the two AUEW shop stewards at British Leyland who refused to allow a Black man to be employed because White shop-floor workers objected was wholly commendable.

ANOTHER BIG RALLY IN S.W.

Wet cop Alderson tries to sabotage NNF Plymouth march but fails

PLYMOUTH NEW NATIONAL FRONT was in the news again last month, staging another big rally in the city on Saturday, October 17th. Weather conditions, together with the counter-attraction of football, made it certain that numbers would not be as large as at the previous rally in July, but nevertheless a total of about 300 local people, mainly young, turned out.

The scheduled programme was for the rally to be preceded by a march through the town. Although Devon & Cornwall police chief John Alderson did not, as in July, ban the march, he did his best to sabotage it by ordering a last-minute alteration to the assembly point, of which it was impossible to notify many marchers in time and which was too far away from the original assembly point to make redirection practical. The result was that there were two separate demonstrations in the city, one directed by local Activities Organiser Derek Merry and the other by YN Organiser Andrew Perrin.

The former was attended by NNF Leader John Tyndall and supported by a contingent of STAG, the party's Special Tactical Activities Group, which came down from London.

Also on the instructions of Mr. Alderson, ridiculous restrictions were imposed upon the marchers in respect of their right to carry flags and picket boards. Flagpoles and the sticks normally used to carry the boards were classified as potentially dangerous 'weapons' — despite the fact that there is no record whatsoever of NNF marchers ever using them for this purpose. Two flagpoles were permitted, providing the points on the end of them were removed, and no poles were permitted for the picket boards.

The march ended with an open-air meeting addressed by John Tyndall and Derek Merry. The local Anti-Nazi League attempted to organise a counter-demonstration but this was poorly attended and feeble in its impact.

DEREK MERRY TO BE PROSECUTED FOLLOWING RALLY

DEREK MERRY, Activities Organiser for the NNF, South West Region, has received a summons to appear in court on a charge of 'incitement' following a public rally that he addressed in Plymouth on July 18th. He is being charged under the Public Order Act. We will report in more detail next month.

OTHER S.W. NEWS

PLYMOUTH NNF will shortly stage a 200-mile sponsored walk from Plymouth to London to raise funds to purchase premises for a Branch HQ and members' social club. The participants in the walk will be Regional Activities Organiser Derek Merry and South-West Young Nationalist Organiser Andrew Perrin.

Meanwhile, New Frontier's correspondent in the South-West has informed us of the tremendous amount of leafletting and posterage that has recently been accomplished by the East Plymouth Group under the leadership of Ken Libby. Ken is ably supported by his son, Russell, and by Dave Corbin.

New Frontier, though it believes in racial differences, opposes race-hatred. All those who oppose multi-racialism should attack the politicians who promote it, not the immigrants, who are merely its victims.

LESSONS OF CROYDON

EXTREMELY poor results were obtained by the candidates of the old National Front and NF 'Constitutional Movement' at the Croydon NW by-election on October 22nd. The old NF candidate received 429 votes (1.24 per-cent of the poll) while the absurd NCFM could do no better than 111 votes (0.32 per-cent of the poll).

The disappointing NF result gives us no pleasure, as we know that many dedicated patriots worked very hard throughout the campaign and deserved a better reward for their efforts. The National Front is the party many of us have devoted our lives to for many years and its demise can only cause us sadness.

Quite obviously, the image of the NF among the British public has suffered appallingly as a result of the scandal caused by the homosexual element within the party and also by the juvenile exhibitionism apparent in some of their public activities over the past year or so and which the party leadership has done nothing to control, and undoubtedly these facts had an adverse influence

At the same time it is probable that no nationalist party, whatever its image, would have received a good vote at Croydon. The present swing of the pendulum is one in which most of the protest-votes are going to the SDP-Liberal alliance, and in these conditions a heavy commitment to electoral activity by nationalists is a pure waste of time. This has been perceived by the leadership of the New National Front and is the reason why it chose not to fritter away its resources by participating at Croydon. Nationalists must wait for the SDP-Liberal bubble to burst, and in the meantime concentrate their resources and efforts in more practical directions. We don't like saying "we told you so" to those who put in all that effort at Croydon, but this is what we must say.

Croydon has shown that there must now be a complete re-grouping of nationalist forces in Britain and a complete new political strategy. The elements that have given nationalism a bad name

GRIMSBY NNF OPPOSES DISARMERS

DESPITE determined opposition from local councillors, Marxists, pacifists and other anti-British elements, Grimsby New National Front held a successful anti-CND rally last month. It was attended by more than a hundred members and supporters.

Before the rally took place, the local NNF Organiser, Jack Noble, issued a statement drawing attention to the double standards of the councillors who campaigned to prevent the NNF exercising its right of assembly and free speech, whilst allowing those facilities to CND supporters who are the enemies of the British people and the British way of life. He said: "Anything goes for the Left — and for me the Tory Party is part of the Left — but there are prohibitions and bannings for the Right. These ridiculous and hysterical outbursts from councillors show an appalling ignorance of the situation facing our country."

The rally was addressed by Mr. Noble, Keith Thompson of the League of St. George and Hull Organiser Tony Braithwaite. A number of NNF representatives from Leeds and Gateshead were also present.

After the rally was over, Mr. Noble said that he was very pleased with the turn-out that had been achieved in spite of official efforts to prevent it being held. He added: "We spoke the truth and made our point."

must be cast out and the remainder must unite into a single political movement with a programme of activity and development geared to the conditions of the 1980s. And the sooner the better!

New NNF groups

THE NEW NATIONAL FRONT became established in two new areas last month. In West London, hitherto a very weak area for the party, a group was at last established following a meeting in Brentford on October 8th which was addressed by John Tyndall and at which 35 people were present. The Organiser of the West London NNF is Martin Braithwaite, who recently came over to the party from the NF 'Constitutional Movement'.

A new group has also been established in Worcester under the leadership of Mark Cotterill and held its inaugural meeting on October 18th. Mr. Cotterill and his followers formerly comprised the Worcester branch of British Movement, of which he was Organiser. Mr. Cotterill decided to come over to the NNF after attending a meeting in nearby Kidderminster addressed by John Tyndall and he is now engaged in converting other Worcester BM members to the NNF. Already a number have joined and more are expected soon.

SCOTS WHERE THE ACTION IS

NEWFRONTIER this month salutes the Glasgow branch of the New National Front. In addition to its work in Glasgow, the branch travels to other activities all over the country.
